

PIGS ON BIKES: COPS USE BICYCLES AS WEAPONS

TPS don't ride bikes – they weaponize them. Police bikes aren't for patrol. They're for control. Cops use them to strike, trap, shove, and kettle protesters. They become shields, barricades & batons:

- Barrier/Fence Line: Bikes are locked wheel-to-wheel, overlapping tires in a horizontal line to block exits or seal off space. Often used to kettle.
- Wedge/Diagonal Lines: Formations split and push through crowds in a V shape to divide groups into smaller and more manageable sizes, or to isolate individuals.
- Mobile Fencing: Cops lift bikes at chest height and shove forward in unison, often yelling "MOVE BACK."
- Crossbow Tactic: A sudden push and forceful push through the crowd to grab someone or extract a "vulnerable" pig—followed by retreat.

IF YOU TOUCH A POLICE BIKE, YOU CAN BE ARRESTED.

Even if they hit you. They may charge you with obstruction, mischief, or assault. Bikes are treated like body extensions, not objects. DO NOT TOUCH, GRAB, OR PUSH A BIKE.

WHEN FACING A BIKE LINE:

- Plant your feet wide. Impact often lands on the thighs.
- Don't grab the bike. Use your body, not your hands.
- Watch for wedges and fast reformation. They're designed to create chaos and snatch people.
- If the line starts moving – look for exits and move fast.
- Stay calm. Help each other.
